

The BossHoss

The BossHoss are one of Germany's most iconic live bands, blending country, rock, and punk into their signature "Country Trash Punk Rock" style. Since their formation in 2004, they have released ten studio albums, all of which achieved gold or platinum status and reached the Top 5 of the German Album Charts. Their last two albums debuted at #1, and Dos Bros alone sold over 300,000 copies.

With over 1,500 live shows in 23 countries, The BossHoss draw 300,000 concertgoers annually, performing in arenas with capacities of 10,000+ and playing major festivals such as Rock am Ring/Park (DE), Download (UK), Donauinselfest (AT), Gurten (CH), Sziget (HU) and Woodstock (PL).

Their latest album, "Back To The Boots" (2025), marks a return to their raw, club-oriented roots and is accompanied by a European club tour celebrating their 20th anniversary.

The BossHoss have a massive presence in mainstream media, including three seasons as coaches on "The Voice of Germany" (Pro7, 4 million viewers per episode), and appearances on "Sing Meinen Song" (VOX, 2 million viewers). They are recipients of multiple awards, including the ECHO, Goldene Kamera, and the German Film Award.

In 2025, they released the single "I'll Be Back" in collaboration with Arnold Schwarzenegger, supporting his environmental initiative.
